The Eddie's Meatball
There's a method to making the Eddie's meatball; it calls upon friends and family to help make 60 lbs. the old-fashioned way. There's a family pecking order to the production line as well. You start out as a "roller" and then advance to the important measuring job as "scooper."

★ How It All Began ★

It all began in 1934 with a hot dog stand and Eddie Stewart Sr.'s desire to take in the sunshine and be close to the water. Together with his wife and Eddie's Restaurant co-founder, Florence "Fifi," they chose a location dear to their hearts on the shore of beautiful Oneida Lake.

There was something about that modest, eight-stool stand. Whether it was the mouth-watering hot dogs, the beach-sized appetites, or Sr.'s million-dollar smile, the people just kept coming.

As summers passed, the menu and clientele grew. The birth of Eddie's signature dish, the "Original Hot Ham Sandwich", is said to have happened quite by accident— customers would probably call it serendipity. One busy summer's day, Eddie Sr. ran out of hot dogs. Knowing he had to feed the hungry tourists something, he whipped up one of his and Fifi's favorites, grilled capicola ham on a seeded roll. Eddie's Sr. said the people fell in love with "The Hot Ham Sandwich." They just kept coming back for more.

The quaint stand developed into a busy restaurant, popular with not only families but also famous stars. In it's heyday, the big band sounds of Glenn Miller and Duke Ellington could be heard from the popular nightclub, "Russell's Danceland," and stories of celebrity sightings at Eddie's abound. Back then a relatively unknown singer named Frank Sinatra patronized Eddie's. After performing he would purchase a nickel candy bar, sit curbside and watch the traffic on Main Street. Crooner Louis Prima spent one afternoon cooking his own spaghetti while serenading Fifi. Other legendary icons who have passed through Eddie's doors include the Ink Spots, Harry James, Nat "King" Cole, Desi Arnez, Dagmar, The Dorsey Brothers, Liza Minnelli, and George Foreman.

Throughout the years, Eddie's has been the place where summer romance flourished, childhood memories were made and family traditions built. Genuine hospitality and culinary delights have made Eddie's Restaurant an integral part of the Sylvan Beach experience. A day at "The Beach" was never complete without a stop at Eddie's.

Today, longtime customers return for that nostalgic experience, sharing the good times with their children and grandchildren.

Eddie's is a tradition behind the counter as well. Employees, past and present are better known as members of the Eddie's family, with some serving up smiles for a decade or more! Sometimes the lineage spans three generations, with grandmothers, mothers and granddaughters all at one time wearing an Eddie's apron.

The Stewart children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren have all worked at Eddie's. Eddie's is now owned and operated by the third generation, Edward R. Stewart III. "Rick" has strived to keep the "Eddie's Restaurant" experience as it was in the beginning and has been for generations. He is committed to carrying on the legacy started by his grandparents, Eddie Sr. and Fifi, and continued by his parents, Eddie Jr. and Leslie. Today when you come to Eddie's you're likely to see Eddie Jr. and Leslie visiting with customers. As well as Rick's kids Eddie IV, Emily, Daunte, & Nevaeh, girlfriend Wendy, his sister Alison, nieces Ava & Ania, and cousins Tiamo & Damiano all working or waiting their turn.

While much has changed at Sylvan Beach over the years, there's still one constant—a modest, yet extraordinary place called “Eddie’s.” Maybe it’s the homemade cream pies, seafood, Italian specials or “Original Hot Ham Sandwich.” It could be the friendly staff or nostalgic reminders of a simpler time. Whatever is behind the magic of Eddie’s, the Stewart family hopes you enjoy your stay at Sylvan Beach and take home memories to last a lifetime. Pull up a seat; you’re home at Eddie’s!

Our Fresh Fish Story

Eddie's fresh Haddock is purchased daily directly from the docks of Boston. Eddie Sr. began serving fish in the 1930s after he was approached by the owner of the Syracuse Fish Co. to try out ten pounds of haddock. The fish sold out that first day, beginning a long-standing relationship with the vendor and reputation for the freshest fish around town to this day.

"The Playground of Central New York"

When evening fell on Sylvan Beach, Hollywood stars would light up the nightlife. In the 1940s and 50s, many big-named entertainers would play to crowds at the once popular Russell's Danceland and other resort hotels on the lake. Eddie's Restaurant was at the center of it all.

Through the years many celebrities had the pleasure of dining at Eddie's including Frank Sinatra, the Ink Spots, Harry James, Dagmar, Desi Arnaz, Nat "King" Cole, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Liza Minnelli, as well as Hall of Famers George Foreman and Jim Boeheim. Most recently it was rumored that Oscar-winning actor Adrien Brody has been spotted at Eddie's, too.
